

Heal the Bay: Sources and Solutions for Ocean Pollution

Tuesday, Feb 17, 2009 7:00 P.M- 8:30 P.M.

Thousand Oaks Library, 1401 E. Janss Road

OUR OCEANS ARE IN TROUBLE!

The 4th International Panel on Climate Change published their findings.

Among many negative changes, they warn us of rising sea levels and acidification of the oceans leading to worldwide die-offs of coral ecosystems. Saira Gandhi works as a coordinator with Heal the Bay, a local environmental nonprofit dedicated to making Southern Californian coastal waters and watersheds, including the Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. Saira's presentation will focus on the sources and solutions for ocean pollution. She plans to discuss the following:

1. Why the ocean is important for people and marine life
2. Sources of ocean pollution such as storm drains and sewers.
3. What we can all do to protect our rivers and oceans.

A question and answer period will follow her presentation. The program is free and open to the public.
